An indication of the current professional speculative mood was furnished to-day by U. S. Steel. The report of unfilled tonnage for April stood at 10,359,747 tons, the highest figure since August, 1917, and an in-crease of 467,672 tons over April. But Steel was heavy throughout the day and finally broke through 95.

U. S. Steel's unfilled townage totalled 10,359.747 April 30 against 9,892,075 March 31, 9,502,081 Feb. 29 and 4,800,685 April 30, 1212.

WASHINGTON, May 10 .- Republican embers of the House Ways and Means Committee to-day definitely de-cided to abandon the proposed tax of one per cent, on all retail sales as a means of raising revenue for a soldier-honus.

There were several articles I lingered over, tempted to purchase, but drifted on, rather undecided, until my eyes perceived a very quaint lacquered jewel hox, entirely different from anything of its kind ever noted before. It was evidently old, but of a class of workmanship quite unique. Indeed as I looked at it, endeavoring to trace the markings on its silvered front, I could not determine whether it had originated in Orient or Occident; seemingly it combined features of both schools, uniting the peculiarities of each. Consumption Tax Is Abandoned. Solemn requiem mass at St. Joseph's L. C. Church, Babyion, L. I., Tuesday

"Yet so strange a curio must have a history, an imaginary one at least. What is the story?"

"Positively none," he admitted regretfully. "Perhaps I am a poor salesman to admit this, but the fact is this article was found by a chambermaid in one of the hotel rooms and turned in to the manager. He made every effort to trace the guests, only to learn that they, two men, by the way, had registered falsely. He even advertised, but with no response, and finally, after thirty days, was persuaded to accept my offer for the article. No doubt there is a story.

up at the black ceiling, the words of the strange fragment of letter re-mained vividly before me. I began might, that it was again recalled to memory.

Only an idle curiosity, and a feeling of sleeplessness, induced me to draw the article forth, and remove its wrappings, but the sight served immediately to increase my interest. It was certainly a wonderful find, artistically beautiful, and most unusual in design. It rested open on the writing desk, under the full glare of the electric light, its strange workmanship exposed to scrutiny. There was a mystery that must have exercised a strange spell over my limingination, for I dreamed of the long, dead workman who fashioned it, forgetful of the passing night hours. A clock somewhere in the neighborhood struck, and I counted twelve, arousing myself. Perhaps I was already half sleeping, for as I turned to rise, my sleeve struck the box at the edge of the table, and hefore I could prevent the fall, it lay upon the floor at my feet.

There was no crash, no clatter, the thick carpet deadening the sound, but, as I stooped hastily to recover the overturned box, I was astounded to discover the bottom slipped partially aside, as though some secret spring had been touched, revealing so narrow a receptacle that the ordinary to analyze them and plan the operanight, that it was again recalled to to discover the bottom supped partially aside, as though some secret spring had been touched, revealing so narrow a receptacle that the ordinary eye would never suspect the possibility of its existence. Closely as I had examined previously no conception of any such secret hiding place had so much as occurred to me, yet now I could not doubt the evidence of my own eyes. Not only was there a false bottom, but the opening revealed a closely-folded paper. I grasped this quickly, a thrill running through me. What ancient and long buried message was about to be unfolded? What work from the dead sought revealment?

But no! This was plainly modernacle aclean, white sheet, no folded parchment of old, but some mystery of yesterday. I apread it out, pressing down the unselled greages. There was
